I am always looking online for events & rides in Louisville only to get frustrated, wondering why local bikers don't have a central website to share ride information, photos and fellowship via a message board or blog, sure I can always take a trip to my local bike shop to read the fliers on the board there but wouldn't it be nice to have all that same information from every bike shop board posted online so I can read it at home?

I remember a site years ago where Louisville bikers could post runs & rallies and had Louisville biker pictures but that site has been gone for years. I have often wondered what happened to it and why the site stopped. since then I haven't seen any good local bike sites made and maintained by Louisville bikers in years

LouisvilleBiker.com was created.

As I put together the beginning stages of what I hope will be the site Louisville bikers will use and enjoy I try to brainstorm of a way to make it better and ask for your help, please take 2 minutes to reply to this and let me know what features you'd like to see on www.LouisvilleBiker.com
